RE: LD 659: An Act to Promote Seamless and Flexible Home and Community Supports Across the Lifespan for Individuals with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities or Autism

My name is Debbie Dionne and I am the mother of a 43 year old woman living with a diagnosis of cerebral palsy, and an intellectual disability. My daughter's complex support needs continue to increase as she ages. For the past 22 years she has lived in a licensed group home with 5 lifelong friends. The Section 21 Waiver has provided those with higher, more complex needs, like my daughter, the supports and oversights needed to allow them to safely live an independent, purposeful life with friends in their community.

To date, 75 group homes have closed with an additional 20 more homes to close in the next six months. There is no shared data from DHHS as to where these displaced Mainers with ID/DD have moved to. These group homes have closed because the group home rate does not support the program's cost and the competitive wage needed to maintain the service. And there are over 2000 adults languishing on the wait list for section 21 services, many who have high support needs and live with elderly parents.

In theory, the Lifespan Waiver appears to be a seamless, flexible solution to the existing waivers Maine currently operates under. As they say, it is all about the timing and the details. The Lifespan Waiver will eventually become the sole funding source and all other waivers will become obsolete. The rate study for section 21 is not due to take place until 2025, one year after the Lifespan Waiver is scheduled to begin to be phased in. It feels as though this delay is deliberate and will cause the eventual death of all group homes and their service providers through attrition. I have never been so fearful for the future for all Mainers with ID/DD and higher support needs, like my daughter. She is counting on me to make sure her home and her independent life is not taken away from her.

There is nothing routine technical about the enormous changes and funding mechanisms proposed to take place with the Lifespan Waiver. In order to prevent the collapse of services for the ID/DD population with the highest needs this bill demands to be amended from routine technical to major substantive.
