Requiring a waiting period for the obtaining a firearm after purchase would prevent so many tragic crimes of passion: homicide and suicide. A person in a depressed state of mind should not be able to quickly obtain a deadly weapon. This would help our veterans who die sadly by their own hands. This seems so obvious that I cannot understand why it is not already a part of our gun safety regulatuons. Please consider the innocent victims and the devastated family members left behind after homicides and or suicides.
