Aren't Americans personal freedoms and liberties being erased enough already? Is this not the Land of the Free and Home of the Brave? I know that statement is debatable but the value behind the words should reign true. Why end something that will bring the state more money? I thought that was the whole premise of "meeting the quota"? What's next, are you going to end alcohol sales and use as well? Would that dabble into your addictions and stress relief from this twisted sick world? What is to gain from taking away my addiction and stress relief? Why can't I take my cancer in the form of how I want it? Is big bigger the tobacco industry running out of money and things to do because I highly doubt it. Do the tobacco industry have that much power over Maine that you have to end and/or challenge vapers because we like blueberry freaking cancer? I really hope you all quit thinking what's best for Americans and actually step out in public, take polls from real humans and actually take their interests to heart. That would be the real and best way for change.
