When I was 18 I became pregnant for the first time, and I decided that I was going to have an abortion.

The state I lived in at the time had a law that required counseling and adequate, transparent information in regards to ending the life that was inside me.

Because of the laws in Pennsylvania, I left that Planned Parenthood and never returned, because ultimately I chose to keep my son, who is now 19 years old.

There hasn't been a day that has gone by, where I have not been grateful for that law that saved my son's life.

I personally believe that both women, and children can benefit from ultrasounds and counseling before abortions.- There are an incredible amount of women who suffer from life long mental health issues, because of the depression caused by their abortions.

- This bill in no way restricts access to abortion, and it does not impact the rights of the mother who wants the abortion, but it DOES have the potential to save two lives at once.

- My son is living, breathing proof that these laws save lives !
