Good morning! I would like to make known my opinion on the subject of having an ultrasound and counseling before a woman can chose to murder her baby. I believe all live is precious and the unborn is vulnerable and in need of our protection. Being able to see your child with an ultrasound will show the expectant mother that the baby is fully human from the moment of conception. With tiny fingers and toes and a beating heart. Counseling, I also think, is just as necessary as the ultrasound. The mother needs to understand her choices and the consequences to her and to the baby.
