Reproductive autonomy is a common sense right of all women and families, plain and simple. Deciding when and if a family grows is not politically negotiable; if it had been, the destiny of my sisters would have been decided by politicians. Raising a child is a life-altering experience that should be a welcome challenge, not a politically mandated, life sentence. How are we free if we are not afforded the responsibility of deciding for ourselves? Our state has a long and proud history of prioritizing common sense, let's continue it. Enshrine reproductive rights in the Maine State Constitution.
