I am the Reverend Anne Fowler, an Episcopal priest.

My faith tradition teaches me to seek justice, love mercy, and walk humbly with my God. To walk humbly means not to judge another person's circumstances or decisions in relation to her reproductive health and safety. It means to respect her privacy, and her integrity. To seek justice means that every woman should have equal access to such decisions, safety, and privacy. To love mercy means to have compassion for all women in their decisions around reproductive health care. Enshrining these rights in our constitution will advance Maine's proud protection of, and respect for, women's reproductive health. Thank you.
