The Eddy Middle School

I own and run The Eddy Middle School, a state-approved middle school in Newry, ME. My landlord did not have flood insurance on the building and it needs a lot of restoration. The school had to relocate and pay for the use of a new space and will not be back in the original building for at least one more week. While the business itself did not get hurt (schooling is still happening), the location of the business did- and the landlords need financial help to pay for the necessary renovations.
