

Catherine Gilley
Harpawell
LD 2086

This bill is far too vague and ambiguous to be written into law. As the law would stand the definition of a machine gun is anything that approximates the action or rate of fire of a machine gun; how is it that a machine gun is anything that approximates the action or rate of fire of a machine gun? The attempt to change the definition of a machine gun to be anything you feel it is, is an overreach of government and will only prohibit law abiding citizens from their state and federally protected state constitutional rights. This should be turned down.