My name is Maks. I believe that a waiting period will do very little to help your average Mainer. Most of the worst instances of gun violence in this country have been premeditated attacks sometimes planned over weeks or months. The waiting period is simply another inconvenience to a law abiding citizens. It will in no way stop any planned attack simply by asking someone to wait 3 days to pick up their firearm. It can however be a make or break situation for someone if your gun breaks during hunting season, or right before a shooting competition or if you feel you need protection right away. If youre a victim of domestic violence you would then be told that you need to wait for 3 days before you can protect yourself. Hopfully notbing happens in the meantime! In conclusion this is a misguided attempt to help that will be an inconvenience at best or a life threatening emergency at worst.
