The roadside and fields around Maine are getting fenced off stopping wildlife from their natural roaming, polluting the area with broken glass from solar panels that no one is planning to clean up, and yielding very little electricity especially in the winter when the solar panels are covered with snow.

But that's not all. They also have a certain lifespan. Is there a plan to work on that? What is the plan?

And that's not all. It's a windfall for the solar panel contractors. They even have gangs of scammers intimidating households by pretending to be from CMP and signing people up for accounts with solar companies against their will.

And that's not all. The rest of us, who have legitimate concerns about this debacle are also taxed on top of all the other taxes to subsidize this pet project.

Let wind and solar stand on their own. You have given them enough subsidies. Let the people keep their money and make their own choices.
