I strongly am against this passing. By restricting coyote hunting this puts many farmers livestock at a higher risk. I have a horse farm and we breed yearly, we also have a high coyote population around and when it's been needed we shoot them. So to not be able to protect my animals that are my livelihood does not sit right with me. I think that all the other farmers who have cattle in our state as well will say the same thing. Additionally this will put many people's dogs at higher risk for attacks, and affect the deer population for Maine hunters. Lastly the fact this was such short notice to the people of Maine is unfair.... I strongly advise this to not pass.
