

Andrew Simones
Augusta
LD 32

I am a lifelong Mainer of 59 years. I am the working poor that makes a modest living but has always paid his bills and has lived within his means. Maine is becoming too expensive to live in for people like me. One of the biggest reasons is the high cost of energy in this state.

I live in a mobile home park in Augusta and people were going door to door trying to have people sign up with a company called Arcadia Solar, the person explained that it would save me some money on my CMP bill. After just one month the company withdrew $457.45 from my checking account. This is for a mobile home with two people living in it. This is financially unsustainable for somebody like me. I strongly suggest that Arcadia be investigated and that the state works harder to lower energy costs in Maine.