Not sure if I'm doing this properly, but I'm here to say/support coyote hunting. It's made a definite difference in my neck of the woods, deer population/ harvest numbers have risen and so has the sightings of deer. Night hunting is key because of the difficulty that day time hunting brings. I've been hunting coyotes for approximately 10 years. It's a sport that's all hunters benefit from. Coyote diet consists of lots of turkeys , partridge, rabbits, deer fawns, mature deer , I've noticed big jumps in my local small game populations. Please keep seasons and laws alone
