My name is Josh larrabee we started hunting coyotes because they were roaming close to our houses and our livestock coming within 20 yards and we all know how they affect the deer population. A couple years ago due to conflicting schedules we didn't hunt at all for around a year and the amount of coyotes on our game cameras increased dramatically seeing multiple coyotes in one picture and see a lot more day sightings in some areas of large fields where a farmer has cows pastured at different times of the year. I feel it is the wrong decision to cut the hunting of coyotes down from what we can hunt right now due to night hunting being our biggest success of keeping the coyote population manageable
