Hello. I am a land owner in Palermo Maine and sadly to hear that we have to fight for our land again. We bought this land in hopes of our forever home and farm and if you cut through this precious land it will disrupt the beautiful forest. We have native plants , deer, moose, fishers and much more that is imported to a healthy ecosystem. We are too quick to cut down forest land to put up transmission lines that only helps Mainer reduce our power by a small percentage. I'm all for green energy but I think we could use current corridors , along existing main roads "buried" , or just invest in Maine and put wind or solar on each house to be their own power system and excess could return to the power grid. These ideas just make sense. Why are we taking down forest land and taking homes away from Mainers. We need to do better for my son and the future of Maine.

Thank you
