Good afternoon,

I am in OPPOSITION of LD220 and hope you consider the people you represent and their voice in these matters.

When it comes to Maine kids, parents should have the final say. Each of our kids have unique abilities and needs and parents know this and are able to consider these things when making life and education decisions. No matter how good the intentions of government and school officials they can not possibly know each individual child with everything else they are doing for work on a daily basis. Legislation like this is why young families are leaving Maine, I want to raise my kids where I was raised. I implore you to strongly consider this view point.

Respectfully,
Joni
