

Jedidiah Kiernan
Anson
LD 1126

LD 1126: An Act Requiring Serial Numbers on Firearms and Prohibiting Undetectable Firearms

Ought not to pass. This is another example of a poorly worded bill. For this to work as intended there would need to be a gun registry. A gun registry is expressly prohibited under Federal law. There are older firearms in circulation that were never serialized because it wasn't required at their time of manufacture. Would this law require a valuable collector firearm be defaced to serialize it? If a law abiding citizen would like to build their own firearm and a serial number is going to be required, why can they not serialize it themselves? In fact, they should not have to serialize it at all. The National Firearms Act of 1968 clearly states that if you (as an individual) are not selling the firearm you are making, the firearm is not required to have a serial number.