I couldn't agree with this statement more- "These killing events are an irreverent degradation of Maine's wildlife, which do not represent Maine hunting traditions and ethics. This malicious killing does not align with Maine's hunting traditions of sportsmanship and fair chase principles, nor the ethics and reverence for nature in general. Wanton killing of wildlife for a prize undermines the public's view of hunting. Rewarding the indiscriminate killing of as many animals as one can violates conservation ethics and its values. Glorifying killing for its own sake is not what we want to teach our children nor does it reflect Maine's humane values, and gives all hunters a black eye."
