This bill would place an undue hardship on school districts that are already overworked and understaffed. While I support transparency, placing limits on teachers' ability to differentiate the curriculum to meet the needs of all students would be detrimental to every child's access to education. Our schools share curriculum already and don't need more requirements placed on them. I also have concerns about recording professional development sessions as it may place limits on how teachers can engage and participate if people outside the district were allowed to attend and judge their hard work. I urge the committee to consider how challenging education is now and not make it more difficult for schools.
