Re: Please Support LD 958: An Act to Prohibit Eminent Domain on Tribal Lands

Although it may not have been called Eminent Domain, it isn't a stretch of anyone's imagination to think its concept was utilized through the years, so much so, that today, only about one percent of the land mass within the state of Maine is all that is still owned by the Tribes.

And the land mass area of Maine is huge, so rest assured that the Tribes have already "given" more than enough to the "public good".

This is why it is VERY obviously justified to support this bill to stop the taking of yet more land from the Tribes by eminent domain.

Thank you for your thoughtful consideration of when "enough is enough", no matter who it is that definitely gave up more than enough.
