I'm a Kennebunk resident and have been working with concerned residents to remove the Mousam River dams that have had their licenses surrendered. The state has required the owners to improve the water quality upstream from the dam and to provide fish passage. The only scientific way to provide habitat for migrating fish is to remove the dams and create a free flowing river. The FERC license process has been going on for over a decade and needs to move forward. The gulf of Maine fisheries will continue to decline if we don't step up and create more spawning habitat in our rivers.
