

Susan Anspacher
Portland, Maine
LD 1323

It is well known that these pesticides permanently bind to insect nerve cells. It overstimulates and destroys them. They die a horrible death. These pesticides leach into ground water. They are absorbed into the air we breath. The grounds were walk upon. Allowing this anywhere, creates a public health hazard.

Government's job is to protect it's citizens, not destroy their environment and ultimately them.

We hope you care enough about living things not to destroy them.