One investment leads to another in Maine

The demand for an air squadron command here in Bangor will be great for Environmental protections in the near future. As a military officer I believe you need to monitor the skies above Maine for enemies that can dilute COVID types of biological components/weapons and spray us from releasing components into the skies over Maine. Without proper reconnaissance missions, Maine will be blind even further in the future. You will need to use the Intruder reconnaissance plane and the Warthog thunderbolt plane; these types of surveillance vehicles are peace makers when the time comes here in Maine. Therefore you should build these “warehouses” and “storage” buildings keeping in mind that you here in Bangor, Maine might need to house a squadron of surveillance aircraft such as the Intruder and the Warthog Thunderbolt at the state level with Environmental protection funding.

Keeping warehouses at Bangor airport with this procedure and rule in mind will enable the state allocated funds to executive other laws concerning aircraft storage in the future. Regardless if your new construction is for aircraft or not, I would keep in mind that Maine needs to keep a squadron of its own in Bangor eventually to protect the skies and monitor the coastlines.

"An Act to Authorize a General Fund Bond Issue to Build a Warehouse for Goods and Cargo at the Bangor International Airport".

In the future you will need a state owned squadron of reconnaissance jet to rule the skies above Maine. The Intruder recon plane/jet and the Warthog Thunderbolt are the two surveillance vehicles I would keep in Bangor.

As a military officer I haven't seen any reconnaissance planes in these skies at all. Beware if the skies aren't monitored properly; enemy planes might be able to "spray" covid like components into the atmospheres above Maine when they attack us. As a military officer I would recommend keeping at least two nice surveillance/reconnaissance planes/jets in the state warehouses anyway. Bangor works for me; I would enjoy to see those two planes flying over the skies of Bangor.
