

Emma Phair
Oakland, Maine
LD 217

I'm a high school student in my sophomore year. I have learned already that abstinence is not the key. It does not avoid the problem, and school administrators must recognize that kids will continue to be involved in these activities. It is vitally important to give those access to free condoms in school communities for the benefit of the kids. It will make more of a difference by making the change for the kids rather than continuing to only say it to them which won't change their actions.