

Michelle Peacock
Freeport
LD 1373

Maine's electoral votes should reflect the will of Maine voters, the Founders knew what they were doing so small states wouldn't be overwhelmed by mob rule. The National Popular Vote compact effectively nullifies Maine's vote if the rest of the country votes differently. The compact is legally uncertain and could lead to chaos or litigation during a close election. Withdrawing from the compact restores Maine's sovereignty in presidential elections.