LD 1423

Maine's Extended Producer Responsibility law is a critical step in addressing the growing waste crisis. LD 1423 threatens to weaken the law allowing corporations to offload the costs of waste management onto taxpayers and municipalities. I feel strongly that producers should bear the responsibility for the entire lifecycle of their products, including the waste they generate. By opposing LD1423, Maine can ensure a more sustainable system where companies are incentivized to reduce packaging waste, invest in recycling and promote circular economy solutions.
