Sorry that I missed today's hearing. I want to explain what happens when a school develops a large undesignated reserve account. Fayette will have over $900,000 in their reserve at the end of this school year. The school board is currently working to put this money into a designated account . They are thinking maybe four or five separate account.. This money has been raised thru taxation. The budget this year is asking for over a $300,000 increase. They will reduced this by taking $200,000 form the fund. They are way over the 9% allowed as their proposed budget for 2025-2026 is $2,204,288 so they are developing several account to put this money into, to basically hide the windfall. Shouldn't the tax payers be given a law that prevents this from happening Nothing has been done in the past to uphold this 9% law and I feel it is wrong and the school board should be prevented from acting in this manner. What ever happened to having an emergency town meeting if more funds are needed rather than salt it away
