I am testifying in opposition to this bill.

I have written out many such testimonies today for the rest of the slew of anti-trans bills you fully grown adults have cooked up to express your hatred of trans children. And once more, I am trying to find interesting and creative ways to say, could you be any more stupid and closeminded? Who actually cares that much? Trans kids are not a threat. They are not a problem. They are not sexual predators towards young girls. They are literally just kids. And letting kids be kids is pretty important. Especially when it means letting them be who they are so that they can be wonderful and loved members of our shared community. I think it's great that you're putting so much creative and intellectual energy into expressing your hatred of children, but perhaps that energy could be put elsewhere, like into breeding puppies to make into fashionable coats, or learning how to drown kittens. I am happy to introduce you to a fun new hobby that doesn't involve making kids feel terrible about themselves. Just call me and we can play Scrabble or something, okay?

Also, I am not trans, I am a woman, I grew up going to public school, and I have never once in my life felt threatened, victimized, or scared of a trans person. Trans people are amazing. You could be amazing too if you tried harder to not be such an ****hole.
