Polluters like Exxon, Chevron, and Shell have known for decades that more fossil fuels would mean more floods, more homes destroyed, and more lives lost. Big Oil decided their wealth was more important than the safety of our communities.

It's time to hold polluters accountable. We have already seen devastating storms impact cities and towns across Maine. It's only a matter of time before the next climate disaster comes. If polluters aren't the ones paying to protect our communities from the next climate disaster, taxpayers will be.
