If I told you that my 12 year daughter doesn't want to have children, and that she knows this for sure and is mature enough to make this decision, and that I was going to take her to get a hysterectomy...Everyone would be outraged. Irreversible, hormones for the rest of her life...what a horrible mother I would be.

I doubt a doctor would grant her wish.

So what's the difference with performing gender transition surgery? Oh that's right, it's equally unethical.
