hello,

i think this would be a no brainer , why would it not be labeled as such they are skating around the requirements for clean testing (its a false clean report) it failed but know that we x-rayed it it passed , what did it do to the terpenes that give so many benefits from the plant the distinct smell and other cannabinoids from it after its been sterilized from these machines , i would want to know if the person i was buying from was using this and not growing it properly with the proper controls in place to grow correctly
