I want the probate judges to be able to order parental rights and responsibilities as part of adult guardianship for developmental disabled adults when they can't take care of themselves and can you also make the probate judges make the adult child remain a minor under parental responsibility of their parents or the state guardianship and judge do reunification orders automatically for their adult child to go back to their family as part of family court proceedings in district court as Maine judicial branch and the judge can order child support for adult child with developmental disabilities over 21 years old and make new orders and there are 40 states that do custody and child support and I recommend that this would be a new draft of bill and judges are just terminating guardianship but not do automatic reunification orders and I don't agree with it and please make the probate judges order adult custody for parents instead of guardianship or just make it part of guardianship and that probate judges do the same thing as district court in family court and there's some states that adult child remains a minor as examples purposes of child support and they have state statutes that adult children over 18 are considered unemancipated and they stay under their parents control so probate judges should do reunification and child custody along with guardianship and parents can have natural guardianship of their adult children please make this the bill and I recommend drafting the bill this help people
