I am writing in support of LD 1730, which would allow the energy of the sun to directly power part of the electricity needs of Maine residents. I wish Maine were the first state to adopt “plug-in balcony solar,” but I’m glad in a way that Utah has paved the way. As one of the most Republican states in the country, when Utah passed this legislation it showed that solar power need not (indeed, should not) be a partisan issue. It’s a practical issue! It’s an economic issue. And it’s a way to help home owners and renters alike tackle their escalating electric bills.
