Good Afternoon.

Without housing, individuals and families can not successfully advance themselves in employment, education and bridging the ever growing gap of income inequality. Housing is the solution to so many of Maine's challenges, and housing projects take years to plan and develop. The people of Maine require support to drive these projects forward. We need 70,000+ new homes in Maine by 2030 and half of those need to be affordable for Maine people. Without funding, Maine will instead only be able to develop 200 units a year. We simply cannot let this happen.

Housing is economic development.
