Nationally, funding is the biggest barrier to building affordable housing, and this includes Maine. Funding available to affordable housing has increasingly been cut or canceled, yet housing is the solution to so many of Maine's challenges. Housing projects take years to plan and develop. Consistent, long-term support is needed to drive these projects forward. We need 70,000+ new homes in Maine by 2030 and half of those need to be affordable for Maine people. Maine Housing production will drop to 200 units a year without more funding. Ending Maine's Affordable Housing Tax Credit is not the way to meet our housing goals or to face Maine's challenges. Housing is economic development. Please support LD2116.
