My son is currently in his third year at the Maine School of Math & Science. Having attended local public schools through Middle School we were in need of another option to keep him challenged and engaged. MSSM provided an affordable yet academically rigorous solution to meet his educational needs. He is thriving there and we have now started the process to look at colleges to pursue his ambitions of being an aerospace engineer. Although this school does a lot with limited funds, the budget constraints have an impact on students and families. One hurdle to adequate funding is that not all districts are paying their share for students to attend due to ambiguity in the statute. This clarifies the obligation of districts with school choice that they are not simply "off the hook" in funding students education. Please pass this to even the playing field among districts. This is one small change we can make to ensure the school is on solid financial footing to serve students well into the future.
