My Constitutionally protected property rights mean the government can't abolish slavery.

My right to control my body means the government can't abolish abortion.

These statements are morally equivalent in that they ~~in that they~~ deny someone else life or liberty for the benefit of the speaker's life style.

Oliver W. Holmes is quoted as saying "Your right to swing your fist stops at someone else's nose."

An unborn child's body is its own, not the disposable property of its "landlord", nor a zit to be popped.

"A person's a person, no matter how small"

Please vote "Ought not to pass".
