LD 1619

Thank you for taking the time to listen.

Somehow, deep inside my soul I knew it was wrong to end a life. I don't know how I knew this, but I did. When I became a Christian, I picked up a Bible and came upon the 10 commandments and learned "You Shall Not Murder". God had confirmed my feelings about ending life.

Last year I read the book the Harbinger II by Rabbi Jonathan Cahn, a Christian and prophet, in my understanding. The book is like a story which tells of America being founded on Godly principles. As the nation put God into their lives and put forth His laws, America was blessed, but when the people turned away from God and his laws, curses fell upon the land. One of those laws was "Thou Shall Not Murder".

The story reads that judgment came upon the city on a hill, our once great nation. In the sixties, New York was the birthplace of abortion, and it set the stage for other states to follow. Since then, millions of babies have been murdered. And judgment was fierce as New York was especially hard hit. Babies who would never get their first breath, was similar, to people who didn't take a stand against these murderous laws and would find their breath taken away.

There were so many deaths that there was no place to properly bury them. The bodies were stacked in warehouses with no formal funeral for families to mourn, no proper burial. Then again, the murdered babies who died from abortions had no-one to mourn them and were left as garbage.

I do not want to be here today giving this speech. Today is my birthday and I am here to speak for those who cannot speak for themselves...the unborn. My birthday wish is that every unborn baby would have a birthday and the right of taking their first breath and living in the land America's forefathers fought so hard for. It is my hope that Maine and our country would change from the direction it is going and come back to God and His laws of right and order. We must repent as a nation. And we must vote against LD 1619 a law furthering infanticide-murder against the unborn.
