

Hi my name is Troy I am a man in recovery

I think that detoxes are important they are the first step in recovery they help so many people they are basically the first line of help they are here to help our community in recovery yes there's a lot of other resources but detox is the first step I think it's important to keep these detoxes open they help so many people they are here to help the community in recovery they can help the body get rid of harmful substances, which can lead to improved health and well-being which is important thank you for your time.