LD 2013

For several years I purchased organic grains, flours and beans from Songbird Farm in Liberty. I was horrified to learn of the predicament this friendly, hardworking family found themselves in when PFAS were discovered in their well water and soil. The contamination was not their fault, they had done nothing wrong, on the contrary, they asked to have their water tested in order to protect their family and their customers. I absolutely support all the measures that LD 2013 would provide. I am proud that Maine supports small family farms and hope that the Songbird Farm and others in the same situation can relocate and continue their good work.

(My suggestion: place solar panels on contaminated fields so that they can be of use!)
