Dear ACF Committee:

The future of farming in Maine depends on how we meet the challenges of PFAS contamination on our farms and farmland. Our farmers need robust support to address the health and financial impacts of PFAS contamination, and Maine needs robust support for research and remediation so that we have the farmland and healthy soils in which to grow our food, in our future.

I also ask that the state create similar programs for those residents adjacent to or impacted by the discovery of PFAS in their home wells.

Thank you for giving your full attention to this matter, this bill, and for your service.

Sincerely,
