LD 2013

I will be 75 years old this fall. For years I have heard about young people leaving the state of Maine. One young woman I have know since birth, went to college in Massachusetts. She met her husband and the two of them came back and moved up to Maine and became farmers. They bought land and invested money in growing the property and making it better. Recently they discovered that PFAS was discovered in the soil of their land. Their property is now worthless. They are afraid of the young child who is growing up on this land may be impacted by these chemicals. Please support LD2013. It will give them a chance to salvage their lives. We need people like this to stay in the state of Maine. We need to offer them help. Thanks for your time.
