

Cameron Goller
Bangor

Withholding medical care for those incarcerated individuals in need of treatment for substance use disorder is both negligent and dangerous. As a nurse practitioner who provides care to folks with substance use disorder, I strongly support this legislation to ensure necessary and common sense medical care is given to one of the most vulnerable populations.