

Rebekah Krise
Greene

All human beings have the right given by God to safety, liberty, and health. Folks who are in prison are no different. Any thing that any person puts into their body can cause an allergic reaction. Folks who are incarcerated do not deserve to suffer and die from allergic reactions because of the stigma around what they put into their bodies. Some folks are allergic to mushrooms, they would hopefully be provided with medicated assisted care for that reaction if they were brought to jail in the middle of anaphylactic shock. A person withdrawing from substances is no different. These folks are in the state's care and the state is obligated to care for them. Supporting this bill is a moral imperative, because these folks are human beings, who deserve trauma informed care, not shame or continued health problems.