I would like to express my objection to L.D.1479. Your looking to create a law that will limit Law Enforcements ability to address all violations. Instead of changing laws to protect violators (who should be held accountable , address the issue by holding Police Departments responsible for their officers actions if misconduct is determined. I'm a retired officer (30 years) and believe that most all officers have good intentions in the performance of their duties. The media and public is very quick to criticize when one situation that ends with negative results. Do you realize how many domestic disturbances, mentally ill individuals and etc that police handle each day, that are resolved on the positive side. On a further note I don't believe Law Enforcement or the general public are racist. You need to address the very very few that are hateful no matter what their race is .
