Dear Sirs and Madams,

As a homeschooling parent, who was home educated myself, I am opposed to any public funding of homeschooling. While I appreciate the genuine efforts to ease the financial burden of education choices for families, I would much rather continue to drive my fifteen year old vehicle and eat rice and beans a few times a week, than rescind any of the freedoms I currently have in how I educate my children.

It is important to me that the integrity and character of the education I provide for my children not be influenced, controlled, or regulated, by public funds in any capacity.

Respectfully, I would like homeschoolers to be removed from LD 1426.
