

Patricia Keyes
Belfast

I heartily support the teaching of our country's and our state's Constitutions. They should be taught in view of the context of the time they were written in, and not through modern 'woke'/politically correct/revisionist history. If possible the only reading materials provided for such classes should be our Founder's original documents, including the Federalist Papers in their entirety without opinionated commentary attached directly to them.

Since Woodrow Wilson rewrote our nation's textbooks on American history and govt, the glory and moral uprightness of the origination of our country has been lost and replaced with boring lists of dates and places. None of the moral urgency to create a land where people could live together in good conscience, religious freedom, and with the sacred right to keep the fruits of one's own labor, free of controlling dictators and confiscatory taxation exists in our public school textbooks today.

Our Constitution assumed that humanity is both precious and morally flawed. It was created, unlike any other document of civil/criminal law in the recorded history of the world, to safeguard the rights of the individual against the tyranny of the mob and out of control government overreach.

It recognized, unlike academia today, that humanity is not "good", and that each generation of flawed individuals must take up their own burden in their own times to "form a more perfect union". This is a job that is never done. We will never arrive. Each new generation inherits it's own selfish human nature and habituated assumptions that have to be overcome to work kindly with others within our own lifespan.

If our children do not learn this, then our nation is indeed lost for good to the communist lies being fed to our children at all levels of academia. I prefer to stop that tide. I support this bill.