

Amelia P Small
Falmouth
LD 394

I do not believe it is ever necessary for a school counselor, with or without, a masters degree as stated in the 1989 bill. Parents have the right to any and all information regarding their children no matter where that information comes from: schools including teachers, administrators, counselors as well as physicians. For school counselors and teachers to integrate any form of indoctrination without open discussion is certainly not what was intended.

Please educate our children to think critically, research thoroughly and thoughtfully without coercion. Students and parents should be allowed to speak freely and openly about their concerns.

Chapter 117 affirms the right of a broken education system to propagandize for no benefit to the children. Please keep this from becoming law.