Why do they want to put windmills in the ocean ? Does the gov not own enough land to do these experiments on ? Maintenance to the mills on the ocean would be much harder and more expensive than on land. I'm all for harnessing the wind but common sense says stay on land. Politics and big money, that's what's this is all about and the hard working middle class will take the hit again. I've been a commercial fisherman all my life no scallop license no elver license I hold a Maine lobster license that pays my bills and taxes so no mills on the water for me.
